

LOCAL

Photo by Dan McCauley

In 2007 Voices presented "Canto ad una Terra" or Song to One World. The group will have several intimate concert events this fall and next spring in both Coweta and Fayette counties.

Voices group announces schedule through 2009

This week, the choral group Voices announced its plans through the end of 2009. The group's season has been restructured and it will be presenting four events in a two-year cycle.

"Since our first concert in 2006, we have consistently been told that we should have more events through out the year. So we have gone ahead and planned our season to include more events in a season that will be spread through the end of 2009," said Maria Pia Ugarte, Voices artistic director

Voices will be presenting a series of intimate events in September 2008, December 2008 and March 2009, preceding its full scale production in September of 2009, "Mist of Night and Moon."

Voices will continue to present an eclectic selection of music, covering varied genres and styles that will be incorporated in the different productions. As the title suggests, there is a flavor of mystery and haunt to the theme and Voices Artistic Director promises you are certain to hear "wonderfully haunting melodies."

Performances are to take place in Fayette and Coweta counties. Details and specific dates are soon to be released. For information on the group, visit www.VoicesOnline.org.